- 1989- Director, Local Democracy Partnership, Rutgers University

RESEARCH INTERESTS

Broadly defined my research and teaching concentrates on women's agency, political activism, grassroots mobilization, and the construction of women's political spaces. Over the last fifteen years I have worked with many women's and feminist groups in central and east Europe and Central Asia on questions of political participation and women's rights. I have also conducted extensive work on the impacts of political and economic restructuring on the process of democratization, citizens' participation and decentralization in central and east Europe.

Current Major Project

My current multi-year project supported by the National Science Foundation and conducted jointly with colleagues from Poland and the Czech Republic, focuses on women's agency, the European Union and eastern enlargement. I am also the director of Local Democracy Partnership Program. Several international/comparative research projects in the areas of gender studies, participatory politics, Third Sector, and public administration are being conducted by LDP and Center for the Comparative European Studies (CCES). LDP as a multi-year and multi-million dollar (over $9 million) project sponsored by major foundations and governmental agencies aims to work with the new states of Russia, Ukraine, Belarus, Georgia, Kyrgyzstan as well as the central and east European countries in advancing local government reforms and building grassroots democracy. In addition, several projects that specifically focus on women's participation in public and political life have been and are currently conducted in Belarus, Ukraine, Poland as well as Georgia, Armenia and Kyrgyzstan.
